"From Theory to Business Value"

The Hackett Praxis, LLC

The Hackett Praxis, LLC is technology and management consulting firm based in Cross Lanes, West Virginia. We offer a wide range management consulting services to our clients including business analysis, project management, program management, and project portfolio management consulting.

Project Management

Our project and program managers are highly skilled and experienced project management consultants. We offer high quality services for various types of projects and programs ranging from strategic initiatives/programs to operational projects.

Management of Projects and Programs

We use the Project Management Institute (PMI) framework to help lead and support your high visibility initiatives. We use other evidence based management practices as applicable to manage your projects and programs.

Development of Management Plans

We develop and maintain project management plans, which include the plans for managing scope, cost, schedule, risk, communications, quality, human resources, stakeholders, procurement, and other subsidiary plans such as change management as needed.

Development of Methodologies

We can develop for you a custom project management methodology that meets your organizational needs. We can develop and document processes to support the project management methodology. We also can help you deploy the methodology within your organization.

Business Analysis

We work effectively with stakeholders to help define their business requirements, evaluate and recommend relevant solutions, shape the output of projects, and drive successful business outcomes through activities such as modeling and forecasting.

Project Support Services

We can support your internal project management team during any phase of the project life cycle or the entire project life cycle. These support activities can include but is not limited to providing project administrative help, human resource staffing assistance, project management mentoring, and providing or arranging project management training.

Project Staffing/Human Resource Management

We can create your staffing and human resource management plans to address how staffing needs will be handled during the life of the project. We also can provide staffing services to augment your project staff.

Project Review

We are your trusted advisor through the review of a project, which can be conducted before, during, and after project implementation. This service includes reviewing the project management plans for completeness, the project's current state for problem areas, and conducting post implementation reviews.

Project Procurement Management

We can manage your project procurement activities as a subproject. We perform research, develop procurement documents, and manage the entire acquisition life cycle including vendor and proposal evaluation.

Vendor Management

We help you find a middle ground with your vendors. We help integrate and manage multi-vendor dependencies for a successful project outcome. We assist with monitoring vendor performance with key performance indicators.

PMO Design

Project Management Offices (PMOs) are organizational units that support projects. A PMO functions can range from reporting project statuses to upper management to recruiting, selection, and salary definition of project managers. The PMO is designed for your organization's unique needs.
